Returning To Canada

Five Hundred of First Contingent Have Decided to Come Home.

Militia Department Have Received Word to That Effect.

Artillery and Mounted Troops Remain in Africa Till First of Year.

Ottawa, Sept. 19 .- The militia depart ient received to-day a cablegram from tant-general, dated Capetown, September 18, which states that 500 of the first contingent will return to Canada mediately, the remainder having elected to stay in South Africa till the end of the war. This means that about 350 Canadian infantry will be left behind. It is likely they will be drafted into son English battalion for the remainder their period of service.

The artillery and mounted troops from Canada will continue in South Africa un il their year is up, which will be Janu arry or February, by which time it is ex sected the country will have been paci-

POLITICAL GOSSIP.

Lord Salisbury Intends to Retain the Premiership if Conservatives Win.

London, Sent. 19 .- One effect of the dissolution of parliament has been to elicit declarations from almost all the Liberal papers and politicians in favor of the policy of annexation in South Africa. The manifestoes of the party leaders have not yet appeared, but as soon as they do appear the speech-making will begin and the campaign will go forward. It is asserted with an air of authority that Lord Salisbury will again become premier, and that all the members of the present cabinet will be retained, unless defeated at the polls. This would make Lord Salisbury's fourth premiership. elicit declarations from almost all the Berlin, Sept. 19.—It is understood that the immediate cause for issuing Gere many's circular note to the powers regarding a Chinese settlement, was the fact that Li Hung Chang, during his recent interview with Dr. Munn von recent interview with Dr. Munn von Schwartzenstein, the German minister to China, mentioned a number of names of alleged high mandarins hitherto unknown as those responsible for the Pekin outrages, and said that China was willing to punish them. This explanation seems to be borne out by the following statement made by the German foreign office today to the correspondent of the Associated Press in Berlin:

"What we want to avoid is an area."

ciated Press in Berlin:

"What we want to avoid is an opportunity for allowing China to impose any sham concessions upon the powers by delivering up for punishment persons who had nothing to do with the Pekin attocities. Hence it is advisable for the representatives of the powers in China to designate beforehand all who are notoriously guilty. Germany does not wish to prejudice the case in any way. She wishes to reach an agreement with the powers regarding the guilty and their punishment."

Sato, first secretary of the Japanese level.

Sato, first secretary of the Japanese le-Sato, first secretary of the Japanese legation here, said to-day: "I think there will be no difficulty in getting the powers to agree in principle to the German-proposition to punish the guilty. Thoreal difficulty will be in deciding how high to go. If they decide to include Prince Tuan, then they will find that the Empress Regent was back of him. "Russia, in my opinion, will not now withdraw her troops from Pekin, inasmuch as Germany and the other powers remain.

"She will decide that circumstances have changed, and that she must remain also."

LABOR ARBITRATION.

New Zealander Explains the System is Vogue in That Colony.

Washington, Sept. 19.—H. H. Lusk, formerly member of parliament of New Zealand, was to-day before the industrial commission. He explained the system of arbitration in New Zealand, which he said had been satisfactory. This system was in the form of compulsory arbitration and it had had six years' trial. The fact that there was compulsory arbitration there made both employees and employers very careful as to the justice of their cases before they acted. In these courts of arbitration in New Zealand no lawyers are allowed to appear. Labor organizations in New Zealand no lawyers are allowed to appear. Labor organizations in New Zealand are generally incorporated, and they had found no disadvantage in such incorporation. The arbitration law had been favored by employees and fought by employers before it had been enacted. Up to last year three-fifths of all labot in New Zealand was organized. Practically scales of wages there are made by lubor organizations for the men outside unions as well as for those within them. The arbitration court of New Zealand never fixes the maximum rate of wages; it simply fixes the minimum rate of wages that can be paid. This system, he said, does not hamper industries, for the reason that in the six years that it has been in operation the industries have increased one-third, an increase in old industries and the springing up of new ones. Washington, Sept. 19 .- H. H. Lusk Monthly Meeting of Woman's Auxilliary of JubileeHospital on Tuesday.

Invalid Chairs to Be Purchased With Proceeds of Ball Games.

The first regular meeting since the summer vacation of the Women's Auxiliary Society, Royal Jubilee hospital, was BRITAIN AND held yesterday at the Driard hotel. Those present were the president, first vice-president, secretary-treasurer and 16 members of the society. Prayers being said and the minutes passed, the secre-tary's report was called for and read as

"Madame President and Ladles:—There is little to report since the last extra meeting of the executive, held three weeks ago, except to note an omission in the report on that occasion. During the summer a set of golf putters and balls have been donated for the recreation of the nurses by the visiting medical staff of the hospital. As this graceful act was performed by them through the agency of this society, it deserves our grateful acknowledgment.

"We have now to re-commence our membership canvass and our sewing. I believe that our income can be doubled if the city is thoroughly canvassed, and I hope that we shall find friends kind enough to undertake this somewhat oner ous task. The sewing also is important. Our reserve stock, not yet altogether complete, needs replenishing and sustaining. Miss Grady reports that she finds her estimate for annual supplies will not prove sufficient as regards some of the items comprised. This, of course, is a matter which we can only prove by experience, and we shall know more accurately in another year the probable average of the demands upon us.

"I would lay before you the advisability of making an outlay in some special hospital furniture very much needed for the comfort of the patients and the convenience of the medical and nursing staff. Since my report on this matter at the annual meeting, the ladies of Cowichan have subscribed for a fracture bed, and Miss Leiser is collecting for an indoor ambulance. The remaining present needs are the dressing wagons and another invalid chair. The Lawson-Tail beds on the female side are a very great advantage, and some more of these would be much appreciated. Plants and shrubs for the grounds and corridor are always acceptable."

come up by steamer in the afternoon, and the officers and crew will remain at the station until the return of the Walla Walla from the South on Saturday.

In one of his letters to the Vancouver World, Roy Brown tells of a plot to escape by some of the quarantined passengers. It was arranged that a launch should be sent at night, and six, who were to pay from $50$ to $100 for the trip, were to be taken. The money was subscribed, but the plot got out, and the trip was off.

ABYSSINIA

Capt. Cotton Rela'es the Story of His Expedition to Menelek.

From the London Times.

Capt. Powell Cotton has just returned from a ten months' expedition in Abyssinia. The interesting portion of his trip only began after leaving Addis Abeba. While in that city he had several audience of the Negus, who evinced the greatest interes; in passing events in various parts of the world. On leaving Menelek's capital Capt. Cotton travelled through many practienlly unknown districts in the north of Abyssinia and along the Anglo-Egyptian and Italian frontiers, subsequently cross-ing Erythrea and eventually striking the coast at Massowah. Discussing the relative positions of Great Britain, France and Russia in Abyssiaia, Capt. Cotton said:

"Winatever may have been the case in the past, there can be no doubt that at the present time England holds the first place in the estimation of the Emperor. While this is very largely due to the work of Capt. Harrington, the energetic British agent, it must also be attributed to the effect that the fall of Kharrtonn and the resuit of the Fashoda incident has had upon the Abyssinian mind, and this effect is not only noticeable in the capital, but in all parts of Abyssinia. The Emperor himself showed great interest in all matters per tabing to the British empire. While I was in the capital we were having many reverses in South Africa, and interested persons were doing their best to present these to the Emperor in the worst possible light. But Menelek was neither surprised nor impressed by these stories. He told me himself that these early reverse were only to be expected, and then dwelt mon the inceast at Massowah. DIDN'T WANT ACOUSTICS.

How the Old Baptist Expected to Make a Cheaper Bargain.

From the Galveston (Texas) News.

In a little town up on Red river the Baptists were planning to build a new house of worship. They were hanging fire on the advisability of purchasing the building owned by another denomination in the town. In the called meeting of the church the price was put before the people. Just at this juncture a brother objected to the purchase because the acoustics were not good. In an instant old Brother F. was on his feet and piped out: "Let 'em keep their acoustics; we don't want 'em nohow. We can take the building without them things, an' hit will come cheaper fur us." That settled it, and the Baptists did not make their purchase. The other denomination owns both the house and acoustics this good day.

TROOK THE PICTURE AFTER ALL. From the Galveston (Texas) News.

TOOK THE PICTURE AFTER ALL

From London Tit-Bits.

A certain artist declares that a newly betrothed lover commissioned him to paint a secluded nook in the rocks on the shore, because there he had declared his passion. The picture was painted, but before it was done the lover said to the artist:

before it was done the lover said to the artist:

"Of course, I shall pay for that picture as agreed, but my engagement is off, and of course, it would be painfully suggestive to me. If you can sell it to some-body else I will take another picture, and be extremely obliged besides."

The painter assented to the arrangement, but within a week his patron again presented himself.

"It is all right," he announced joyously, "I'll take that picture."

"Am I to congratulate you on the renewal of your engagement?" the artist asked.

The United States can to a certain extent have a system of finance of its own. Every country has that. There is nothing exactly resembling the British system, the Canadian system, the present system in force in the United States, or in fact that prevailing in any of the leading countries of the world. They all differ in details, and there is no standard by which they can be measured o as to decide which of them comes the nearest to an ideal system. As has been said of systems of government, "What's best administered is best," so the system of finance which best meets the require ments of any community is the best for that community. If nations had no intercourse with each other, there would be no need for their several financial systems to have anything in common. Three months 40 Thus if Canadians bought nothing from or sold nothing to the United States, it would matter nothing to us whether the standard of value in that country was gold or turnips; but as long as there is which both are agreed upon. Otherwise it would be impossible ever to conclude commercial transactions. What is true of these true countries is true of commerce the world over. It is imperative value upon which there is international greement, either express or implied. The latter is just as good as the former

SUFFERING FOR ITS SIN.

From Ottawa Citizen. From Ottawn Citizen.

The Old Liberal journal that dared to criticize the New Liberalism of the Tarte-Lauricr-Sifton combine, the Vankleek Hill Review, whose opinions have in part been reproduced in these columns, is not mourning these days over the fact that it has been cut off the exchange list of the Ottawa Free Press, It takes its readers into its confidence and explains the situation is follows:

We do not read the Ottawa Free Press.

The editor will not send it to us.

He refuses to let us study its pages and learn the great and grand truths of Liberalism.

We're not in it, and must in future be compelled to struggle through our weary life without the brightening influence of the Ottawa Free Press.

We have sinued and come short of the glory of the Ottawa Free Press. We have fallen from grace and can now expect no recognition from the professed leading exponent of Liberal principles.

Why is it all?—That's easy. We wared to criticise the Liberal party leaders. The dear old Free Press thought it would jump on us and shut us up. We did some of the jump act too, and the dear old F. P. came out second best.

The Free Press has gone further; it has refused to have business dealings with the leaves of the standard of the standard country of the standar

The death of Mr. Joseph Wilson removes from the community one of its best known and most highly respected members. Mr. Wilson has long been identified with the business interests of the city and province, and gained a descrete reputation for integrity and honorable dealing.

There is talk of the French cabinet resigning. The reason is not that the cabinet is weak, but because it is strong, and it is thought advisable to get out now, in view of the certainty that after the Exposition closes, there will be a general row. The new cabinet, it is thought, can meet this by disclaiming any responsibility for the Exposition.

The Viceroy of Chihli Tells His Story of the Fighting Near beaten. Many foreign buildings were burned.

"On the 23rd the foreigners attacked at sunrise, thinking their dens would be difficult to guard, so their fierceness was much greater than before. Our troops, combined with those patriotic Boxers, fought serverely with them for a long while. They (the foreigners) were apparently unable to hold out for any length of time, whereas our men fought bravely, and in the afternoon found the enemy unwilling to continue. We finally saw them skulking back to their dens. Yeh and I were of opinion that our affairs had gone well so far; it was vain to hope to restore good relations, so to augment the courage of our own men we thought it better to bombard the dens of the foreign troops in order to dishearten them, after which we planned to retake the forts at Taku.

"We now tore up the railway line at Chingliancheng (half-way between Tien Tsin and Taku), and other places, and we opened the water suices and gates at Chengchiakou (above Tien Tsin city), to let the water out of the Pei-ho, and thus, by lowering the depth, prevent We let the water out of the Pei-ho, and thus, by lowering the depth, prevent the foreigners going to Pekin by stream. We found that those foreign troops already set out for Pekin. Admiral Seymour's column had been cut off by Boxers at Yang Tsun, eighteen miles from Tien Tsin, by the destruction of the line, and that they were now trying to skulk back to Tien Tsin, so we at once detached forces to cut them off.

"These are the victories which he have won since the beginning of the trouble, and this is the true condition of the defences here."

In a supplement or postscript His Excellency says: "I am doing my best to mite the army, and to manage affairs properly, but as the foreigners have received so great a gash, I am sure they will not remain quiet; there will be a great movement of the troops of all nations. Now to fight eight powers with the forces of one is quite impossible, how can the forces now at my disposal in Tien Tsin be brought against the collected armies of eight nations and stand up a them? In a second report he says: "At noon on the 20th several hundred foreign soldiers came out from the mud wall of the military store at Hisiku (the admiral soldiers)." In a second report he says: "At noon on the 20th several hundred foreign solders came out from the mud wall of the military store at Hsiku (the admiral's column); they carried guns, and hid in the woods of Pei Miau, on the opposite side of the store, and attacked our campe. Our men fired back, and fought for two mounts; the foreigners returned to Hsiku, owing to the repeated onsets of our troops, and the absence of their own chief forces. They had no way to get out, so in the night they set fire to the sides of the store in order to skulk off. When we saw the fire we stinck off. When we saw the fire we stincked the rear, at the same time extinguishing the fire by the help of the Boxers and the fire brigade. All the foreign troops eaped by making a detour via the Langlungtan to the railway station. On putting out the fire we found nine depots (godowns) of weapons, cartridges, fuses, etc., had been burned; the others, containing rifles and military stores, are all safe and in good order." (This refers to the successful retreat of the admirai's forces and its relief columns in the settlements. Very probably the reason why they were unmolested in their long, hot

Up to the present the only accounts of the recent fighting in the Orient have been given by the correspondents of the advices brought by the Empress of India is the Chinese account. Yu Lu, the vicercy of Chil-li, in his regort of the fighting near Tien Tsin to the Chinese government, which is not without interest, says in part:

"Lo Jung kwan had in the city and Gen. Nich's men; as there were also 30,000 Boxers, who regard the destruction of churches and the killing of foreigners as a patriotic duty, I called a meeting of their leaders, and explained to them the policy of the government. All offer their services freely, and their patriotism is manifest in their actions.

"On the 22nd the foreign troops attacked our men in different places, but we held our own at all points. Our forta and different camps shelled them, and the patriotic Boxers assisted everywhere in the fighting, which continued till the patriotic Boxers assisted everywhere beaten. WEST COAST MINES.

Second Payment Made Under the Bond on the Indian Chief Group.

The Dewdney Canadian Syndiente have made their second payment on the bond, they have on the Indian Chief group of the mines at Sidney Inet, on the West Coast, They have been working steadily on this group for the past twelve months and within the past two months have dopened up an exectionally fine body of this grade copper cre, carrying both gold and silver, several hundred tons of which is, is already in sight. Should further development show a continuity of the ore body, an arrangement will be made to ship the ore, which is in close proximity to the water.

The success of the Hayes mine, the Monitor worked by Mr. Maynard, coupled with the development at Sidney Inlet, is should convince mining men of the value of the West Coast as a field for investigation and operation.

William Melbourne MacDowell, the actor, spent Sunday in the Ludlow street jail, where he was taken on Saturday on an order of arrest issued by Justice Me-Adam of the Supreme court as a result of a suit for separation brought against him by Mrs. Wilhelmina Marie MacDowell, who alleges that he treated her with great cruelty and deserted her. The couple were married on June 15 last, and, according to Mrs. MacDowell, their married life was marked by a continuous round of dissipation on the part of her husband, whose first wife was the late Fanny Davenport.

MacDowell spent Sunday in reading the newspapers. He was not in very good humor, according to the jail attendants, and resented their efforts to engage him in conversation. He has counsel, and to-day steps will be taken to furnish bail to the amount of $2,000, which has been fixed by Justice Me-Adam. As soon as this is done, the actor will be liberated.

The prisoner declined to discuss his case yesterday with the reyorters who called at the jail to see him. To all requests for his side of the case he said: "I am too much upset to talk about this matter. You must excuse me if I refuse to discuss it."

JAMES BAY FLATE.

Sir:—As pointed out in an editorial in the Colonist a short time ago, there is a postilential odor at low tide on the north end of James Bay bridge. One does not know just what causes—bubonic plague, choicera, etc.—but it is surprising that something of the sort has not cre this resulted from such noxious effluvia in the heart of the city of Victoria. All that is required to remove the nuisance forever is an embankment along the shore from James Bay bridge to the east end of Belleville street. On the top of this embankment there could be a street with shade trees, while under the street a sewer could be laid to carry all the drainage of the locality do a point below low water mark beyond the bridge. Such a street would not interfere with the shore rights of anyone; it would add to the value of all the property behind it, and might be made "a thing of beauty and a joy forever." Certainly after completion of the roadway and sanitary drainage system visitors would no longer call James Bay bridge the "Sewer Entrance to the Governant Buildings." Commending this matter to the consideration of the city council, city engineer and citizens in general.

Frenchman Who Was Disgusted at His Treatment by the Boors.

Treatment by the Boors.

Writing from Paris, the correspondent of the New York Times says:
Some interesting letters are being published here by Jean Carrere, the only French journalist to whom has been permitted access to the scene of the British operations in the Transwal. M. Carrere is a Southerner, a typical Murseil lais, with a good deal of the Tartarin and of the troubadour in his composition of news, sentimental and good-humored—joyous, sentimental and good-humored—is both vigorous and picturesque, though as a correspondent he has no conception of news. Sent out to write a glowing account of British misdeeds and cruelty, he has been so well treated that he sees everything "couleur de rose." This irritates his French readers, who expected something quite different, but M. Carrere, like every Meridional, is irrepressible, and his work, moreover, bears the stamp of truth.

His last contribution is a description of a little Breton prisoner whom he met in the British hospital at Bloemfontein, and as the French would say. "Cest a moutrie de rire." The little Breton was named Paul Thierry, the son of a French and Miscoura the propose of the main and proposition of January that he left France. His family was against it, but at last his father yielded. He went to defend the weak people, solely because an appeal was made to youth. He was sent by the X committee, the organizer of which naturally stopped in Paris. The French of them being downright rascals. The Germans were more numerous, better organized, and better recervited. They got to my little grant with the Boers. They were, Thierry admitted, somewhat mixed, some of them being downright rascals. The Germans were more numerous, better organized, and better recervited. Governor and his family, and next to him are the Dutch consul and the Protestant bishop. He is not allowed out on parole, but he may go to church, three miles from Dendwood Camp, accompanied, however, by a British guard, and on account of the distance he is allowed to use a carriage. He is treated with great respect by the other prisoners, but the French correspondent has not yet managed to talk to him, though once, he says. Cronje looked at him in a penetrating and suspicious sort of way. Cronje is not the taciturn, sulky person he is usuafly represented to be, but shouts with delight when he comes across a particularly beautiful bit of scenery. The prisoners on parole have been helped by the inhabitants of St. Helena, and nearly all of them have obtained work.

Malatesta is a short, strongly-built man of some forty-five years with a broad, intellectual forehead, and keen, deeply-set eyes. He is dark, with just a touch of grey in his hair and Vandyke beard. The point which strikes the stranger is the grave and punctillous politeness of his manner.

He was sitting with half a dozen friends, to whom from time to time he appealed as some phrase I used puzzled him.

"I do not like the English newspapers," was his reply, when asked for an interview. "I am an engineer. I work, and I mind my own business. All that has been said about me and my friends—all is untrue."

A Highlander, having to teach a chum in his regiment to play the bagpipes, began to instruct him in reading the music in the following way:

"You see that chap with a white, round, open face?" pointing to a semi-breve between the lines. "Well, he moves slowly from that line to this, while you bent one and take a long blow. Now, if you put a leg on him, you make two of him, and he moves twice as fast. If you black his face he runs four times as fast as the white-faced one; then, if you bend your knee or tie his legs, he will hop eight times faster than the white-faced one.

"Now, when you blow the pipes, remember that the tighter those chaps' legs are tied the faster they run and the quicker they are sure to dance."—London Tit-Bits.

"Good morning," suddenly cried a bookworm, peeping from behind the leaves of the general ledger.
"Ah, good morning, brother," replied the mosquito politely. "Perhaps you can give me the information I seek. Can you give me a list of the people in town who have not yet bought their wire screens or netting?"—Philadelphia Press.

by American officers have leaked out and started the rounds of officialdom; but usually the matter is quickly hushed up and inquiries result in denials or laughing remarks of a man's ability to enjoy pipe-dreams. Occasionally one runs acroes an enlisted man who happens, to have been present when a torture was inflicted, and who is quite willing to talk about it, or perhaps an indiscrect officer, in an unguarded moment, lets fall a few words of the operation and boasts of how he brought the 'hombre' to time.

"It is a weit known fact that the Macabebe scouts, and other native troops at little or nothing when they desire to extract information or accumulate a little loot. These men are officered by Americans, who should be responsible for the conduct of their men, but in more cases than one would believe the outrages are overlooked, or the men are allowed such opportunities that they can pursue their own sweet will in the matter of prisoners. With the Macabebes the most popular method of forcing unwilling prisoners to give information or part with some of their money is the 'water cure.'

"This is usually applied by tying the South China-to plan which many re formers went a short time ago from this side of the Pacific, some going from Victoria-has failed, in at least one section in its infancy, according to advices received by the Empress of India. This is usually applied by tying the unfortunate native down and estraphing a way that it is impossible to close it. Their water is eteadily poured down the vicinit's troat in earnot help swallowing it, and if the operation is continued any greatly destroded, vomiting of a chotting character follows and finally the lungsfill up. Cases have been heard or where the unfortunate men have been drownstoned the matter of the contribution of the prisones of the prisones of the prisones of the matter down but these things to one in their commands and they must be cognizent of them.

Another method unployed is to hung, principally the prisones of the men possessing a grain of commonsense or of logulity to their people, whether they be guerillos or patriots (very likely they were of the band that killed the sergeant), they refused to give any information to their capturers. This apparently enraged the officers, who permitted, if not ordered, the natives to be hung by their necks. Capt. Brandle is charged with torturing two natives who were prisoners under his custody and entitled to his protection, and of unlawfully, willfully and entitled to his protection, and of unlawfully, willfully and entitled to his protection, and of unlawfully, willfully and entitled to his protection, and of unlawfully, willfully and entitled to his protection, and of unlawfully, willfully and entitled to his protection, and of unlawfully, willfully and entitled to his protection, and of unlawfully, willfully and entitled to his protection, and of unlawfully, willfully and entitled to his protection, and of unlawfully, willfully and entitled to his protection, and of unlawfully, willfully and entitled to his protection, and of unlawfully, willfully and entitled to his protection, and of unlawfully, willfully and entitled to his protection, and of unlawfully, willfully and entitled to his protection, and antives wounds and causing the said two natives to be hung by the neck with a rope for a period of about ten seconde, more or less, thus indicting upon the said two natives wounds causing great bodily pain. "Amongst the conspirators arrested at Hankow," says the China Gazette, "was a Japanese named Kai (he is a retired major), apparently about 25 years of age. He endeavored to evade arrest, and defended himself vigorously with a sword. He wounded some soldiers, but was over-powered and taken to Wuchang. He was surrendered the same night on representations made by the Japanese consul. He himself was wounded and bore marks which suggested that he had been tortured in the Yamen, in the hope of extracting a confession from him. On search being made at the conspirator's house nothing but some cases of cartridges for rifles and revolvers were found at first, but a closer examination resulted before noon in the discovery of a number of old pattern rifles and portmanteaux full of Japanese swords, and these were marched off in triumph. It would appear as though the Japanese was employed by the conspirators in the importation of the arms mentioned."

"Quick lunch," is one of the commonest of city signs. The sign doesn't say "a healthy lunch of good food"—the character of the food' apparently is not considered. It's just a "quick lunch,"—eat and get away is it amy wonder that the stomach breaks down? Food is thrown at it, sloppy, ind; gestible and innutritious food, very often, and the stomach has to do the best it can. Normally there should be no need for medical assistance for the stomach. But the average method of life is abnormal, and while this continues there will always be a demand for Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It is the one medicine which can be relied on to cure diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and medicine designed of a ture-all. It is a medicine designed of a ture-diseases which have their cause in the derangement of the stemach and digestive and nutritive system. It cures when all cise falls.
